Biographical/Historical Note

Archbishop Michael Augustine Corrigan was Archbishop of New York following the death of Cardinal John McCloskey in 1886 till his own death in 1902. Throughout his time as head of the Archdiocese of New York, Corrigan witnessed and participated in various changes throughout both Catholic society and secular society. He aided the growth of the Archdiocese of New York as New York as a whole grew through industrialization, urbanization, and immigration. Like his counterparts before him, Corrigan left a lasting legacy on the Archdiocese, of which is documented throughout his collection.

Michael Corrigan was born on August 13, 1839 in Newark, NJ. He was sent to St. Mary's College in Wilmington, where he was confirmed by St. John Neumann, before going to Mount St. Mary's in Emmitsburg where he graduated in 1859. Corrigan continued his studies at the newly opened North American College in Rome, where he was one of twelve students. He was ordained into the priesthood on September 19, 1863 by the Vicar of Rome, Cardinal Patrizi. Upon completion of a doctorate in divinity at the North American College, Corrigan returned to Newark in September 1864 where he took a position teaching dogma and scripture at the Seminary at Seton Hall. Corrigan continued to rise in the ranks as he was appointed Vice President of Seton Hall and Director of the Seminary in 1865, followed by President of both the College and the Seminary in 1868. In addition to these roles, he was also appointed Vicar General of Newark in 1868. Corrigan became the youngest bishop in the country when he was made bishop of Newark in February 1873. He made it his mission to visit every parish in the diocese and overall increased the diocese by one-third during his time as bishop.

On October 1, 1880, Corrigan was named titular Archbishop of Petra and Coadjutor Archbishop of New York. Six years later, he became the Archbishop. Corrigan worked on various synods and councils during his time as coadjutor and archbishop. For example, the Fifth Synod in 1886 led to the creation of many of the Archdiocesan offices which exist today. Additionally, Corrigan was heavily involved in Catholic Education and the great "School Question," also known as the relationship between parochial and public schools and how the State government views parochial schools. He fought hard for the state to support parochial schools. He required all able bodied churches to create schools within his first two years as Archbishop. By the time of his death in 1902, he opened seventy-two schools. Archbishop Corrigan also dealt with some negative issues. One issue being the McGlynn Case, in which he dealt with the fall out of Fr. Edward McGlynn and his followers. He also was faced with the question of how to deal with the ever growing phenomena of secret societies and whether Catholics are prohibited from participating.

Archbishop Corrigan oversaw expansive growth of the Archdiocese, largely resulting from the influx of immigrants in the 1890s. The number of Catholics during 1870 to 1900 increased from 4.5 million to 12 million. He worked closely with religious groups like Mother Francis Xavier Cabrini and her Missionary Sisters of Sacred Heart who worked with immigrant groups. He also increased the number of parishes as the number of new worshipers increased. He opened ninety-nine parishes by 1902, of which many of these churches were created for non-English speakers. He worked with various charity groups, and lay societies like the Holy Name Society and the Knights of Columbus. He also oversaw the work on the construction of a new seminary, St. Joseph's in Dunwoodie, Yonkers, NY. The Seminary was completed in 1896 and became the official seminary for the Archdiocese of New York.

Archbishop Corrigan's tenure was cut short when he contracted pneumonia and died on May 5, 1902. He was mourned by many and laid to rest at St. Patrick's Cathedral.

Scope & Content Note

The Archbishop Michael Corrigan Collection contains materials pertaining to Corrigan's time as Archbishop of New York between 1886 and 1902. However, there is correspondence that does predate this, from 1870. His correspondence has been divided between letters sent to Corrigan and letters sent from Corrigan. Series I Correspondence to Archbishop Corrigan is organized based on the types of letters found: letters dating before his time as Archbishop, letters from bishops and foreign dignitaries, personal letters, and letters from the clergy, laity, and religious. This organization was initially done by the first archivist who processed this collection. Series II Correspondence from Archbishop Corrigan contains mostly copies and drafts of letters he sent. The originals would be with the recipients. Additionally, Series III Circular and Pastoral Letters contain more general letters sent by Corrigan to the congregation.

Series IV Administrative Files and Reports contains papers relating to the administrative aspects of the Archbispopric. Subseries A Religious Institutions contains financial reports, accounts, meeting minutes, agenda, and various files that pertain to the numerous institutions overseen by the Archdiocese. Some examples would be parishes, missions, schools, and hospitals, as well as different societies. Subseries B General is where the more general files of the Archdiocese, like Bishop Meetings, clergy information, and legal documents can be found. Finally Subseries C contains numerous reports that were documented throughout the Archdiocese, such as Education and Chancery Reports. Series V contains the Sermons, Addresses, and Writings of the Archbishop which did not fall under the Administrative Files series.

Series VI Events contains various ephemera such as tickets, menus, and invitations to events that Corrigan was invited to and attended. There is also material from Corrigan's Episcopal Silver Jubilee. Series VII contains biographical information on Corrigan, specifically materials gathered for the Life of Archbishop Corrigan, a work that was never completed. Series VIII contains materials relating to Corrigan's secretary Fr. James Connolly. This material is mostly correspondence 1892 to 1899, though Fr. Connolly does not appear as secretary until 1893. Series IX contains Corrigan's extensive newspaper clipping collection. The topics of the clippings range in both religious and secular from about 1883 to 1902. Majority of the clippings were gathered through a clipping service, which identifies the newspaper and date. However, there are many clippings when the date is unknown. See the processing note for more information on how this series was handled.

Processing Note:

This collection has been re-housed from its original non-archival storage. The original box numbers are noted in the collection list below. The collection has been intellectually rearranged, so that it reflects the type of materials associated with Corrigan's time as Archbishop. Most folder titles are specific, but there are a few more general titles which we can only speculate that they were later additions to the collection. Invitations were initially separated out by the first archivist, and can now be found in Series VI Events. Additionally, in the original finding aids there were numerous files that did not pertain to Corrigan, but rather his predecessors and even his successors. These files were removed and a note was made in the original guide.

Newspaper Clippings: Archbishop Corrigan had an extensive clipping collection, found in Series IX. Larger newspaper clippings were placed in mylar and removed to be put in a larger flat file box. Clippings that were able to fit on the scanner were scanned for preservation and access uses. These articles are denoted with an * next to their title. Additionally there are scrapbooks of clippings which have been preserved in their original format with the exception of one. This scrapbook was severely damaged and the clippings were not glued down. It was decided to remove the clippings from the scrapbook to prevent further damage. The clippings from a clipping service were taped to acid free paper and a list was made of their articles. Any pieces of articles were eventually thrown out, as it was impossible to determine where they came from. A list of all the known articles from this deconstructed scrapbook can be provided upon request. The list also exists in Box 70 Folders 7 and 9.
