A lecture by

DR. CHARLES CAMOSY

Michael J. Curran, Fellow in Moral Theology, St. Joseph's Seminary

Dr. Charles Camosy, a noted bioethicist and professor of moral theology, will explore in this lecture the influence of secularized medicine in undermining fundamental human equality in the broader culture. Dr. Camosy will discuss the meaning of death in our society and the consequences of our current behavior for future generations. Join us for this engaging and thought-provoking presentation.
