The Christian Family

“... in every Christian family the different aspects and functions of the life of the entire Church may be reflected: mission; catechesis; witness; prayer etc. Indeed in the same way as the Church, the family is a place in which the Gospel is transmitted and from which it extends. The family as a locus of catechesis has a unique privilege: transmitting the Gospel by rooting it in the context of profound human values. ...It is, indeed, a Christian education more witnessed to than taught, more occasional than systematic, more ongoing and daily than structured into periods.”

(General Directory for Catechesis, 1997)

The Christian Family

“The Christian family is ordinarily the first experience of the Christian community and the primary environment for growth in faith. Because it is the “church of the home,” the family provides a unique locus for catechesis. It is a place in which the word of God is received and from which it is extended.

The Christian Family

“With the Christian family, parents are the primary educators in the faith and the first heralds of the faith with regard to their children.” But all the members make up the family, and each can make a unique contribution to creating the basic environment in which a sense of God’s loving presence is awakened and faith in Jesus Christ is confessed, encouraged, and lived.”

(National Directory for Catechesis)

Research: Five Factors

(Christian Smith, Soul Searching)

- The evidence clearly shows that the single most important social influence on the religious and spiritual lives of adolescents is their parents.
- “We’ll get what we are.” Most parents most likely will end up getting religiously of their children what they themselves are.
- The best way to get most youth involved in and serious about their faith communities is to get their parents more involved in and serious about their faith communities.”

Research: Family & Faith

Search Institute

The Effective Christian Education study found that families that express faith do the following things:

- talk about religious faith
- have family devotions, prayer, or Bible reading at home
- have family projects to help other people

Research: Family & Faith

Search Institute

Youth in families that often express faith do the following things twice as often as those families that do not express faith:

- read the Bible and prayer when alone
- read and study about the Christian faith
- are spiritually moved by the beauty of God's creation
- have often felt God's presence in their life

Research: Religious Upbringing

Robert Wuthnow, Growing Up Religious

The prime source of faith for self-described "religious" people was the way faith permeated the daily life of their family. Time and again they pointed to variations on several common family activities. Religious formation happens when "specific, deliberate religious activities . . . are firmly intertwined with the daily habits of family routines." "Compared with these practices, the formal teachings of religious leaders often pale in significance. Yet when such practices are present, formal teachings also become more important."

Research: Religious Upbringing

Robert Wuthnow, Growing Up Religious

1. Eating: Family Meal—eating together, saying grace before meals, sharing information about our lives—is one of the most potent ways of forming faith.
2. Sleeping: Bedtime rituals and prayer
3. Having conversations: Talk of values, character, and holiness

Research: Religious Upbringing

Robert Wuthnow, Growing Up Religious

4. Sacred objects/religious images
5. Celebrating the holidays
6. Moral instruction
7. Being part of a faith community
8. Family devotions and reading the Bible
9. Role of generations (grandparents)

Research: Religious Upbringing

Robert Wuthnow, Growing Up Religious

“The daily round of family activities must somehow be brought into the presence of God. Parents praying, families eating together, conversations focusing on what is proper and improper, and sacred artifacts are all important ways in which family space is sacralized. They come together, forming an almost imperceptible mirage of experience.”

(Robert Wuthnow, Growing Up Religious)

Research: 5 Keys

Youth and Family Institute

1. Caring Conversation. Christian values and faith are passed on to the next generation through supportive conversation. Listening and responding to the daily concerns of our children make it easier to have meaningful conversations regarding the love of God, and are ways to express God's love to others. Hearing their parents "faith stories" is one of the most important influences on the faith of children and teenagers.

2. Family Devotions and Prayer. The Christian faith shapes the whole of our lives and involves a lifetime of study, reflection, and prayer. Family devotions provide a way to learn more about the Bible and Christian tradition as a family, and apply the teachings to daily life as a follower of Jesus Christ. This understanding of a devotional life includes, but is not limited to, public worship, bedtime prayers, Bible reading and study, table grace, evening and morning prayers, and praying alone at any time of the day or night.

3. Family Rituals and Traditions. Families identify themselves and tell their family stories through daily routines, celebrations, and rituals. Family rituals can take many forms from daily rituals such as mealtime, bedtime, leaving and returning; celebrations such as birthdays, anniversaries, and special achievements; church year rituals at home such as Advent and Lent; milestones such as births and deaths, first day of school and graduations, etc. Family rituals and traditions speak volumes about what the family values, believes and promotes, and how much the family values its faith.

4. Family Service. Engaging in service with one's family can be a powerful opportunity for growing in faith. Both children and adults are more likely to have a growing, strong faith when their family serves others together. There are many opportunities for service: some in the home, some in the congregation, some in the larger community. Whatever type of service you choose, it is best done with family members or other intergenerational groups.

5. Family Meals. So many of the family's faith practices happen around the family meal—having conversations, praying, reading the Bible, celebrating rituals and traditions, to name a few. The family meal is one of the few rituals that allow us to act out our concern for each other, our need and desire to be together. The family meal is the time when family comes first—establishing, enjoying, and maintaining ties. Just as a meal was central in the ministry of Jesus, the family meal can be a central faith experience for family members, and the family as whole. It is a daily opportunity to discover Jesus' presence in the midst of family life.

Integrating Faith & Daily Life

“the daily activities of family life are the canvas for experiencing and sharing their faith life with one another, and that activities that call them as a family beyond their own boundaries are also significant”

(Diana Garland)

Key Features of IG Learning

1. Inclusive of all ages and generations, single or married, with or without children.
2. Builds community and meaningful relationships across all the generations in a parish.
3. Provides a setting for each generation to share and learn from the other generations.

Key Features of IG Learning

4. Involves the whole family in learning together and equips families with the knowledge, skills, and faith-sharing activities for nurturing faith at home.
5. Provides an environment where new ways of living one's faith can be practiced.
6. Provides adult role models for children/teens.
7. Promotes understanding of shared values and a common faith, as well as respect for individuals in all stages and ages of life.

Key Features of IG Learning

8. Helps to overcome the age-segregated nature of our society and church programs.
9. Enhances people's identification with their church and integration within the community.
10. Incorporates a variety of ways to learn: prayer, community building, interactive and experiential presentations and activities, group discussion and sharing.

Benefits of Family Catechesis

1. Involves the whole family in congregational life and learning, building up the faith of the whole family.
2. Provides a way to teach, model, and demonstrate family faith practices.
3. Provides the resources for families to live Christian practices at home.

Benefits of Family Catechesis

4. Eases the transfer of learning to the home because the whole family experiences the learning and practices together.
5. Builds up the confidence and ability of parents to share faith and values with their children by providing parent education, resources, support, and encouragement.

If we want children and teens to become lifelong Catholics and members of the church we have to start now by involving the whole family in the life of the church.
